

When a company such as Pappas Telecasting makes a donation of $325,000 in free airtime to one side, they should be required by the FCC to make an equal donation to the other side (or sides). If the airways are public, then media companies must be required to serve all the public to maintain their license. I would suggest that this issue be brought up at license renewal time.